INTRODUCTION

- Biotronics is an emerging method of energy therapy that exhibits a unique potential to further extend the application of energy therapy in integrative healthcare. It showed to be able to heal even patients incurable by conventional medicine [1].
- Here, we would like to present historical unpublished results from 1982, describing an unusually successful research project of the founder of Biotronics – Mr Josef Zezulka.

JOSEF ZEZULKA BIOTRONICS

- Biotronics is a new method of spiritual energy therapy based on the assumption that the human organism consists of three basic components – somatic, psychic and vital. In terms of this division, we can then also understand human diseases and methods of their treatment.

Josef Zezulka

- Biotronics works in the area of vital, biological forces, which are used by a biological instrument – a biotronicist (a therapist). Biotronics divides these forces into four basic groups – centripetal, centrifugal, excitative and tranquilizing forces [2]. The biotronicist applies a specific force structure, which is targeted according to the diagnosis. Via such targeting, in contrast to other fields of energy therapies, the biotronicist's intervention can be more effective and successful.
- Biotronics was founded by a Czech philosopher and healer Mr Josef Zezulka, who also introduced the fundamentals of this field in several international publications [3], [4].

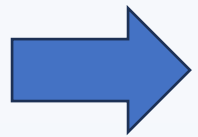

RESULTS

- Out of the initial group of 20 patients, 14 patients were evaluated. Results of only 2 patients were inconclusive, and the therapy of 4 other patients was discontinued early. Mild to significant improvement in patients' health condition was confirmed by both the clinical state, and the laboratory examinations. Improvement was achieved also in diagnoses with lower expected susceptibility.

Cokarthosa 1.sin., ulcus cruris 1.dx.

- A woman, aged 70, with long-term excruciating pains in joints and in the torpid ulcer on her right shank. Able to walk only with the support of two crutches.

6 days of biotronic treatment

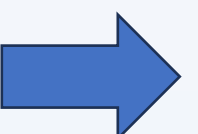

Good sleep, the ulcer painful, on bottom of the ulcer new fresh granulations, the joints have relieved significantly and painful only when walking, uses only one crutch. The improvement of the patient's condition is provable and apparent both subjectively and objectively.

Hypertension II. Ischemic changes of the heart. Chronic pancreatitis.

- A woman, aged 41, with diarrhea and headaches.

6 days of biotronic treatment

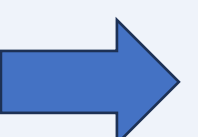

The headache ceased, the stool was normal again, feels significantly calmer and fresh. The health problems have been subsiding gradually by the influence of bioenergetic healing.

Asthma bronchiale, spastic bronchitis

- A woman, aged 25. Suffering from asthma bronchiale from the age of 2.5. Frequent hospitalisation, complications with pneumonia. Seizures once a month (for 3-5 days) from the age of 2.5. Pharmacotherapy without any effect.

4 days of biotronic treatment

Immediate effect: atypical long sleep, concentrating on activities, calm, without complications, able to walk, overall calming (both somatic and psychic). The beneficial effect of biotronic healing is provable both subjectively and objectively.

Colitis ulcerosa

- A woman, aged 30. 4 years of severe ulcerative colitis, biopsy confirmation. Permanent diarrhea. Leg swelling.

6 days of biotronic treatment

Perceives a clear heat from the healer's hands during healing, diarrhea and flatulence ceased, feels calm, strong and fresh, mentally stabilized. The beneficial effect of biotronic healing, provable both subjectively and objectively.

Progressive polyarthritis

- A woman, aged 65. Pains in joints and lower limbs. Moves on a wheelchair or with difficulties on her own. Long-term pharmacotherapy without any effect.

6 days of biotronic treatment

Good sleep, the pain ceased, walks without crutches (indoors). The influence of biotronic healing was significantly positive, provable both subjectively and objectively.

METHODOLOGY OF THE RESEARCH PROJECT

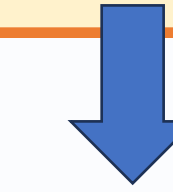

- Case series of 20 patients. The selection was aimed at diagnoses, in which the highest susceptibility to biotronic treatment was expected, based on previous experience with the method. These were asthma bronchiale, ulcus duodeni or ventriculi, rheumatism and malignant tumours.
- The selection further included also patients with lower expected susceptibility to biotronic treatment, such as cardiac diseases, hypertension.
- All the patients underwent biotronic treatment. In addition to observations of the patients' clinical state, evaluation of urine examination, blood test, and erythrocyte sedimentation rate was performed.

Biotronic treatment – Biotronicist Josef Zezulka at the Vimperk Hospital

RESULTS

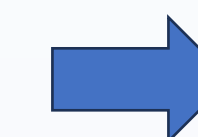

The most striking result was observed in the case of stomach carcinoma in terminal state, in which overall revitalization was achieved after seven days of biotronic intervention. The artificial duct in the abdominal cavity (after colostomy) healed up spontaneously, without surgical intervention. Such result after a non-invasive intervention is not known in the medical literature up to today.

CA ventriculi

- A man, aged 38, with a stomach carcinoma, the state after colostomy. The patient is exhausted, complains about diarrhea, stomachache, has not got any appetite, sleeps badly.

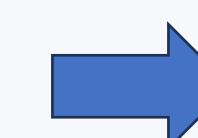

7 days of biotronic treatment (1st cycle)

Calm and good sleep, the pain ceased, the diarrhea ceased, feels fresh, good appetite, quick improvement in the overall state. Quick colostomy epithelization during the therapy and the stool is leaving the body through rectum again; the colostomy has closed.

- During two months the patient's condition deteriorated significantly, the patient is cachectic, he has strong pains, vomited, very tired, diarrhea. It was necessary to proceed to a surgery – anastomosis.

5 days of biotronic treatment (2nd cycle)

The appetite improves, the diarrhea ceased, feels fresh.

Perinatal encefalopathy, cerebral palsy.

- A woman, aged 10, with pains in knees and hands. Rigidity in her limbs. Her motor activity is very weak. Not able to walk without support.

5 days of biotronic treatment

Good sleep, feels relaxed both mentally and motor-wise, unusually active, moving her legs spontaneously, improved motor activity, able to walk without support. Significant positive influence of bioenergetic healing.

Chronic bronchitis

- A woman, aged 55, with pressure in the heart area. Breathing problems.

6 days of biotronic treatment

Feels fresh and calm, good sleep, the breathing problems ceased, the pressure in the heart area ceased. A favourable effect of biotronic healing has been proved.

CONCLUSION

- Biotronic treatment resulted in positive changes in patients' health condition, which were observed both in the patients' clinical state and the laboratory examinations.
- Such outcomes indicate a significant potential of Josef Zezulka Biotronics in integrative healthcare. As the research project was politically discontinued after completion of only the first half of planned biotronic interventions, the achieved outcomes are even more striking.
- Therefore, this new discipline and its possible therapeutic potential should be subjected to more detailed research.
